

There is no doubt that a great change has taken place as regards the frequent interchange of calls as compared with that in force in former days. Many things are accountable for this, among others the "At home" day and the certainty of not finding friends and acquaintances at home during the regulation calling hours other than on at home days. The fashion of remaining at home to receive callers on certain afternoons in every week is a bygone one in the East, and it is not too much to say that no one willingly remains at home to receive chance callers; outdoor life draws all society forth one way or another, driving, biking, walking and the frest. Even bridge are released from the frest Even bridge are released from the frest bridge calls day after day for some three weeks after the return home, and are at liberty to make use of the afternoon hours in any way most pleasing to themselves.

It does not follow that because the interchange of calls is not maintained to any extent, calls on arrival in town are not as imperative as ever. On the contrary, they are more punctiliously paid, if possiting and the wings, chiffon and sliver, a full vest of white satin and a broad girdle of the same. The does not follow that because the interchange of calls is not maintained to any extent, calls on arrival in town are not as imperative as ever. On the contrary, they are more punctiliously paid, if possible, than heretofore, as they are the plot on which all social engagements turn. To call on arrival in town, to call after dinner parties, to leave cards after receptions and dances are obligations carefully fulfilled. Again, afternoon parties are so numerous that they almost set constant calling on one side, as to attend them is tantamount to calling. Occasionally, when an invitation is a first one to a house, a call is made during the current week, or cards are left; but few have leisure to do even this, and avail themselves of the non-calling rule after afternoon at homes now in force.

It would appear to be simple enough to leave cards or call during reserved hours for calling and yet many little points arise which require instant decision when observing this social duty. "Ought I to call when, on arriving at the house, I find an at home is being held to which I have not received an invitation?" asks one. "Ought I to call upon a lady whose carriage is waiting at the door when I reach the house?" asks another. In the first place the correct course to take is to leave cards without asking if a lady is at home. To go in and see her would be out of the question under the circumstances, and, as all cannot be invited on one and the same day, there is nothing invited on one and the same day, there is nothing invited on one and the same day, there is nothing invited on one and the same day, there is nothing invited on one and the same day, there is nothing invited on one and the same day, there is nothing invited on one and the same day, there is nothing invited on one and the same day, there is nothing invited on one and the same day, there is nothing invited on one and the same day, there is nothing invited on one and the same day, there is nothing invited on one and the same day, there is nothing invited on on Mrs, Albert H. Munger opened her home to the Woman's Musiconary Society of the First Presbyterian church and its friends Friday afternoon from 2 to 5 o'clock. The programme was varied and exceedingly well rendered. After a hymn, "The Morning Light Is Breaking." Mrs. S. B. Shield conducted the devotional exercises, reading selections of "prophecy and promise" and closing with an earnest prayer.

Interesting papers were road by Mrs. S. J. Hubbell and Mrs. A. W. Allen, respectively, on "Our Missionaries in the Foreign and Home Fields."

Miss Elizabeth Parkinson's beautiful solo, given in her own pure and effective manner, was well received.

One of the most pleasing features of the entertainment was the poem, "A Living Sacrifice." rendered in recitation and song by the Misses Emma and Mary Whitehead. Two very brilliant plune solos by Miss Virginia Logan were thoroughly enjoyed. Not only is Miss Legan a finished pluniste, but she plays entirely with the left hand depending upon rapidity of movement and skillful fingering to supply both parts.

A pretty recitation, "Nothing to Do," by little Miss Reha Painter, the offering for the day, and a prayer by Dr. Stanton, completed the exercises. After an hour spent socially, the guests turned homeward, charmed with their hostess, delighted with themselves and heartily sorry for all who missed this pleasant June meeting.

CURRENCY REFORM SCHEME. Administration Measure to Be Prepared for Submission to Congress Next Winter.

winter. President McKinley has decided fully that he will not send to congress at this session a message suggesting the crethis session a message suggesting the creation of a currency commission, as he had intended a short time since. Instead of a commission to investigate the subject and report to congress, an administration bill is to be drawn and presented to congress next winter.

The preparation of this measure is to be the special work of Secretary Gage, but he is to have the assistance of Comptroller Eckels and a number of other officials and public men who are close students of the currency and banking problem.

This measure, when prepared, is to be submitted to the president, and, after receiving his approval, will go to Speaker Reed and to a number of leading Republican senators. If any of these have serious objections to its details, an effort will be made to harmonize all the differences so that when the work of passing it through congress is entered upon, there may be no delays through Republican dissension.

just been launched in this city. The boat is the invention of Captain Carl J. H. Filindt, who began the actual work of construction last Christmas. Great secrecy was observed in building the boat.

There is not an angle in her exterior lines. Steering from the bow, which looks like a figurehead, deck and keel bend gradually to the middle of the boat, then taper to the overhanging stern. A pilot house rises like a dorsal fin from the deck, while a row of dead lights, hinting at fishes' scales, circles the hull. Looking at the boat bow on, the suggestion of a fish is as pronounced as from a side view, for there seems to be no beam. Captain Fint bases his greatest hope for phenomenal speed on the propeller, which he holds is the greatest novelty about the boat. There have been other fish shaped boats, he admits, but no propeller like this. She will have her engines in three weeks, and in a week more will so on her trial trip. Captain Flindt has been a sallor for the past twenty-eight years and he has been wirking on the ties for twenty-four years. He made fifty models of propellers before he perfected the device with which this boat is fitted. It consists of two steel plates, each with two flanges, and is expected to make 80 revolutions a minute under a fifty horsepower engine.

The craft is built of oak and steel ribs, and is sixty-seven feet long, six and a half feet beam and twelve feet from the lowest point of keel to the highest point of the deck. This boat will draw six feet of water. She will have two state rooms, each eleven feet long and running the width of the ship; a saloon, forty-three feet long: a machine room and kitchen that can accommodate thirty men. just been launched in this city.

New York, June 26.—After working two days on its report, the Mississippi river commission concluded its labors this afternoon and the non-resident commissioners left for their homes in the West and South. The commission has gone over the report to the secretary thoroughly and made many important revisions. Congress appropriated $2,835,637 for levees, etc. The duty of the commission was to hear delegates from the various districts on the apportionment of this sum and then make out their report accordingly.

The commission appropriated $409,900 for dredging of the river, $2,800,600 for levees and $533,633 for the general expenses of the commission, preservation of the banks and reverments, purchase of a new plant and the putting of the plant now at hand in proper condition.

The apportionment of the sum by districts is as follows: Lower St. Francis district, $77,325; Upper Yazoo $88,825; White river, $18,000; Upper Tensas basin, $53,400; Lower Tazoo, $675,255; Palmyra district, $500; Lower Tensas, $2,820; Acthafalaya, $10,875; Lake Borgogne, $2,790; Barataria, $23,625.

The marriage of Miss Edith Ione Walker, formerly of Salina. Mo., and Mr. John E. Elkington was quietly celebrated in the Arlington Methodist church last Tuesday. The church was prettily decorated with pelms for the occasion, and was crowded with friends of the bride and groom. Rev. L. C. Sappenfield, pastor of the church, was the officiating clergyman.

Wednesday evening, June 23, St. Joseph's church parochial residence was the scene of a pretty wedding, in which the bride and groom were Miss Minna Harrigan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. Harrigan, and Mr. Daniel R. Tuohy. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Father Creagan in the presence of relatives only. Because of a recent death in the bride sfamily, no cards were lesued. Miss Agnes Harrigan, and wore a pretty frock of green and white organdy. Mr. Charles Stark acted as best man. The bride was attired in cream silk brocaded with pink roses, hat en suite, and carried street peas. After the ceremony an elaborate repast was served at the home of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. Tuohy left for their future home. 1237 Jefferson street, where they will be at home after July 4.

Her Husband. New York, June 26 .- Mrs. Alfred Corning Clark, of Coopertown, N. Y., is about to place in New York an enduring memorial of her late husband, whose father, with Isaac Singer, founded the Singer Sewing Machine Company. In the very heart of the East side tenement district she is about to erect a building which will combine a model kindergarten school with an entertainment hall, and on the roof a covered breathing spot for hot summer evenings. The New York Kindergarten Association will have charge of the school and Mrs. Clark will maintain it. According to present plans, fully $50,000 will have to be set aside for the building and its support. But more than that may be necessary, for orders have been given to make this the model kindergarten school of the world. The lease has been purchased and workmen are getting ready to remove the old building standing there now. The building will be ready for occupancy by next summer. to erect a building which will combine
